About our School

The King David High School is an 11-18 Jewish faith school with academy status, with almost 800 students on roll. It is situated just north of Manchester city centre and is housed in modern buildings with excellent facilities.

Until recently, King David consistently ranked amongst the top performing, non-selective state schools in the country. The last two years have seen a decline in academic achievement and a dip in standards, both with regard to the Jewish ethos of the school and general behaviour.

The governors are seeking to appoint a charismatic and dynamic head, committed to achieving the highest standards, who will promote and support the Jewish ethos of the school, inspire and lead staff, pupils and students and ensure that every child reaches their potential in a supportive, warm and caring environment.

The school is a modern Orthodox Jewish faith school and the ethos and values of the Jewish faith underpin all aspects of school life. The vast majority of the children are of the Jewish faith and come from across the religious spectrum from those who have minimal connection with Judaism in their life outside school, to those for whom Jewish practice and religion inform all aspects of their daily life. The school welcomes staff from all backgrounds, be they of any faith or none. It asks them to support and uphold the ethos and be good role models, helping the pupils to understand the difference between right and wrong, to be courteous and polite and to develop a sense of responsibility for others.

The school benefits from a parent body who care deeply about education and academic achievement and expect the school to help each child achieve their potential in a caring and nurturing environment. Manchester is home to some excellent schools and parents will consider sending their children to the independent sector if they are not satisfied with the school's performance. Parents have recently expressed concern that standards have declined and parental satisfaction is consequently not what is used to be.

About our School continued

The school's mission is:

- To provide academic excellence for each child according to their ability, enabling them to achieve their full potential.
- To imbue the children with an appreciation of their religion, heritage, culture and identity, including the centrality of the State of Israel for the Jewish people.
- To provide a warm and caring environment, where children feel valued and can flourish and are offered support and help when needed, so that when they leave school, they are confident and resilient, well prepared for their next stage in life
- To encourage the children to be well behaved, responsible and considerate of the needs of others so that when they leave school, they are young people we can be proud of who will be good citizens and contribute positively to society.
- To offer a wide range of extra-curricular activities to enrich the life of pupils and students allowing them to develop and shine in areas beyond the classroom.

With regards to the internal organisation of the school, it consists of three sections. The majority of pupils are taught in the Main School which is coeducational and streamed on entry, based on performance in formal written assessments taken in January of Year 6 and on reports from pupils' primary schools. The streams are named after the biblical kings Solomon, Saul and David, with Solomon catering for the most academically gifted, Saul for the broad middle range and David for those who will benefit from smaller class sizes and extra help and support to achieve well. The pupils and parents know that every child is equally valued and the naming of the streams is designed to reinforce that message.

Teachers are allocated classes across the full ability spectrum so that all pupils benefit from the same quality of teaching. The streaming is fluid, with a review twice a year and by Year 9 pupils are set in each subject with some setting in lower years depending on timetable constraints. The vast majority of pupils achieve good results at GCSE enabling them to continue into the Sixth Form.

There are two smaller sections of the school, Yavneh Boys and Yavneh Girls, catering for pupils from religiously observant homes who want more Jewish Studies and appreciate the single sex environment. Yavneh lessons are generally taught in the Yavneh buildings for classes which do not require a specialist teaching area. Children attending Yavneh have an extended school day to allow them to follow the same curriculum as the Main School with additional Jewish Studies. Pupils are able to move from Yavneh to the Main School or from the Main School to Yavneh should they so wish. There has been a recent focus on ensuring that the Yavneh offering appeals to parents, as there is increasing competition from other schools in the community.

There is a strong and dedicated governing body who are focussed on ensuring the school's success, arresting the current decline and restoring the school to its former position. They are seeking to appoint an outstanding headteacher to enable them to achieve this.
